Didier Reynders

EU Commissioner
for Justice and Consumers

The 15th anniversary of the European Consumer Centres Network (ECCs) is an opportunity for us to look back and reflect on the success of the single market. For both face-to-face and online shopping, European Consumer Centres have remained relevant all along, as they have adapted very well to the new market trends and the new consumer shopping behaviours.

The European Consumer Centre Network receives more than 120,000 requests from consumers each year. This year, as you can imagine, the ECC phone lines have been busier than ever due to the sharp increase in complaints at the peak of the COVID-19 pandemic; earning ECCs even more consumer trust.

Daily contacts with consumers allow the ECCs to harness market knowledge, which is crucial for evidence-based policy-making, development and measuring the effectiveness of enforcement actions. Looking forward, I have no doubt that the ECC Network will continue to play a vital role in consumer protection. Indeed, under the revised Consumer Protection Cooperation Regulation, the ECCs were given the power to send external alerts to enforcement authorities and the Commission when they detect wrongdoings.

ECCs will also be key for the successful roll out of the European Green Deal and the Digital Agenda for Europe through awareness-raising campaigns to promote sustainable consumption.

ECCs have a bright and promising future ahead of them. I commend their work and the quality services they have been delivering to EU citizens over the past 15 years. I know we can count on them for the next years, they are a key asset for the European consumer policy and its future.

ANNIVERSARY

MESSAGES

Didier Reynders

EU Commissioner for Justice and Consumers

"I am convinced that the European Consumer Centres Network with its practical support to consumers will remain in the future as an essential feature of the Union's consumer cooperation. I wish the ECC-Net a happy birthday!"

Ivo Mechels

CEO of Euroconsumers

"As a matter of fact, the complementarity between the work of national consumer organisations and the work that you do is key. Good luck and here's the next 15 years of collaboration together!"

Jolanda Girzl

Senior Legal Advisor for the Swedish Trade Federation

"You enable consumers to be confident to take full advantage of the internal market. You also provide services that help consumers to trust the digital economy, in order to make the most out of the European Single Market. This benefits both EU consumers and businesses."

Prof. Dr. Christian Kastrop

State Secretary in the Federal German Ministry for Justice and Consumer Protection

"The close collaboration between ECC Germany and France in their joint location in Kehl, near Strasbourg is a prime example of European cooperation and unity. Together with the other partners, the ECCs form an unique European network to the benefit of consumers. I congratulate the ECC-Net on 15 years of important work for consumers all over Europe!"

Petra de Sutter

Deputy Prime Minister of Belgium

"I can't help but support the work that your centres undertake on a daily basis. We as legislators can make as many regulations as we want to protect consumers. Nevertheless, consumers have to be aware of the existence of this protection. I hope that the upcoming 15 years of your network, at least, will be as fruitful as the past ones."

Monique Goyens

Director General of BEUC

"You are providing very pragmatic and concrete guidance to consumers when they try to navigate the jungle of European consumer law in cross-border cases. We see the ECC-Net as a very legitimate and reliable partner. I look forward to working with you for many, many more years to come."

15 YEARS OF CROSS-BORDER CONSUMER PROTECTION

The European Consumer Centres Network (ECC-Net) operates in all EU Member States as well as Norway, Iceland and the UK, with support from the European funds and co-financing from national governments. Our main prerogatives are:

- Provide free information and advice to consumers who purchase products and services within the European Union, so that they are fully aware of their rights.
- Assist with out-of-court settlement of disputes arising between traders and consumers from different EU Member States.

OUR HISTORY

Almost 30 years ago, the European Commission started to support the provision of information and assistance in cross-border consumer issues. The 'Euroguichets' network was thus created, with offices located and active mainly in border regions. Over time, the European Commission focused on establishing network partners in the Member States and named them 'European Consumer Centres'. In 2001, the European Extrajudicial Network (EEJ-Net) of information and assistance centres was founded to forward consumer disputes to competent Alternative

30 European Consumer Centres

One in each EU country, Iceland, Norway and the United Kingdom

More than 150 legal experts

Dispute Resolution (ADR) bodies. Some Member States entrusted their existing European Consumer Centre (ECC) with this task, others opened separate contact points. In 2004, 13 Member States had ECCs, while the EEJ-Net covered 17 centres in 15 others. Two very similar networks were now responsible for cross-border consumer issues.

THE ECC-NET WAS BORN

In 2005, both networks merged into one: the ECC-Net. Today, there is an ECC in every EU country as well as in Iceland, Norway and the United Kingdom. More than 150 legal experts provide assistance in 24 different languages, free of charge. The ECC-Net continues to help consumers defend their rights, increase trust in the internal market and maintain a high level of consumer protection in Europe. It also continues to increase its influence on European policy- and decision-makers.

Over time, complaints have become more complex and the number of consumers needing our help is increasing. While it fulfils an indispensable role in protecting consumer rights successfully, after the introduction of the euro in some EU Member States and in light of ever-more-advanced digital commerce and other cross-border technologies all over Europe, the ECC-Net faces new challenges all the time.

Our Mission

The network of 30 European Consumer Centres (ECCs) empowers consumers to know their rights and to take full advantage of the opportunities the Single Market offers.

How we accomplish our mission

The ECC-Net's legal experts assist consumers to solve their cross-border problems free of charge by providing strong legal expertise.

The network offers a unique overview and reliable information about consumer affairs in the Internal Market which can be used for policy making in collaboration with European and national stakeholders.

15 YEARS OF EXPERIENCE AND UNIQUE EXPERTISE

30 centres – 15 years of experience and unique expertise

The primary role of the ECC-Net is to increase consumer confidence when they engage in cross-border transactions by providing free information and advice on their rights, as well as assistance with resolving their cross-border consumer complaints. As a collective external alert mechanism, ECCs will also increase their cooperation with national authorities responsible for the enforcement of consumer protection laws (CPC-Network). From 12 December 2020<sup>1</sup>, the ECC-Net will also join the Single digital gateway implemented by the European Commission and the Member States as an information and advice service. The ECC-Net is a vital on consumer rights service within the EU and for resolving problems with traders from another EU Member State, Iceland, Norway or the UK. The Consumer Conditions Scoreboard 2017 shows that the ECC-Net receives more cross-border complaints than Alternative Dispute Resolution bodies or the European Small Claims Procedure.

Direct continuous contact with consumers across Europe enables us to identify the challenges EU citizens face in countries across the Internal Market and to address them with EU policymakers.

Recent consumer difficulties relate to technological developments such as artificial intelligence, use of smart connected objects and self-driving vehicles. However, basic consumer rights still need to be further strengthened and harmonised for both normal and exceptional situations.

The ECC-Net works closely with national consumer organisations, policymakers, academics and stakeholders such as business organisations and public-interest NGOs. Nowadays, a solid and comprehensive consumer rights policy helps businesses grow their market share, contributes to the optimal functioning of commercial markets and guarantees the implementation of consumers' rights and entitlements.

Main problem areas

The ECC-Net has always had high case numbers in these three economic sectors. Most complaints relate to the terms for terminating contracts, cancellations of or changes to bookings (especially by the operator but also by the consumer). Over 15 years, more than 60% of all travel contract transactions were concluded online; 16% of online transactions were processed through third-party booking agents.

ECC-Net and COVID-19

The coronavirus pandemic is having a great impact on both consumers and businesses. Many economic sectors have been severely affected, especially tourism. From the very beginning of the health emergency period, the staff of all European Consumer Centres was there to answer the many questions and complaints received from European citizens regarding the cancellation of their transport options, hotel bookings, rental reservations, package holidays and flights. The imposition of lockdowns and travel restrictions had led to increasing numbers of complaints well beyond travel and transport. Problems were experienced across the board with all things such as online shopping delays, cancellation of cultural and sporting events, disruption of academic studies and scheduled training.

In times of crisis, consumer rights are of utmost importance. Their preservation and application form our main objective. The ECC-Net received a total of a record 88,585 of questions and complaints between January and July 2020.

WORKLOADS INCREASES

Whereas the first weeks of the crisis generated increased volumes of questions on consumer rights for all of our ECCs, as of late, our focus as a network is on collaborating to help resolve disputes between consumers and traders following cancellations and refund issues primarily. The following ECCs are the 10 most impacted.

KEY AREAS

The increase in caseload across our network of offices has been unprecedented and many ECCs have had to adopt emergency case handling measures to cope with the additional workload. April was the busiest month in the history of the network in terms of consumer queries: 17,600 consumers contacted us for assistance. The overall workload increase was compounded by a high number of non-coronavirus cases, far more than those received over 2019.

COVID-19 has also impacted existing consumer law in many countries and the ECCs need to keep themselves and consumers up to date with national legislative changes and developments related to the following key areas:

Hotels

Package travel

Event tickets

Accommodation

Passenger transport and air travel

Car rental

Prescription periods

REMOTE WORKING IN THE ECC-NET

In order to comply with local and national health regulations in their various countries, some of our offices have continued to work remotely so as to provide our services to consumers. As such, our service provision model remained unchanged - throughout the crisis, we continued to dispense direct assistance to consumers via our communications channels, through our digital and social media platforms, and in partnership with European media outlets.

The European Consumer Centres exchange information on a daily basis about legislative changes introduced in the aftermath of the crisis. For example, some European countries have temporarily adapted their legislation on travel and refunds for cancelled events, in particular.

In addition, we have implemented a series of efficiency processes in our query processing work. For example, our case-handlers across our 30 offices in the EU/

EEA share a database that is constantly updated with the latest information on COVID-19 national legislative changes, as soon as these come into force. In times of crisis, European consumers must be able to rely on expert qualified advice so as to be able to exercise their rights and be fully protected. Since the beginning of the crisis, the European Commission has been committed to protect consumers online. In this context, the ECCs provided a wealth of information that helps consumers deal with serious issues such as online scams and counterfeit products.

Another source of grave concern is the proliferation of unfair commercial practices on online platforms. Some traders try to leverage the vulnerabilities of consumers to sell products such as face masks, sanitising products and medicines that are advertised as capable of preventing or treating Coronavirus infections.

These unfair practices have been investigated and confirmed by the European Commission, which then launched a joint action to protect consumers from such rogue traders. In this context, cooperation between the ECC-Net, the Consumer Protection Cooperation Network (CPC), the European Commission and other enforcement authorities is essential.

While working remotely during confinement, between January and June 2020, the ECC-Net's legal experts informed and assisted 88,585 European consumers.

Our expertise

On the following pages ECC-Net shares insight on some of the most important issues European consumers face today.

Consumer policies must constantly adapt and respond to changes and developments in our daily lives. In 2019, the ECC-Net published the paper 'For a Europe which protects its consumers in their daily lives based on feedback from different Member States' highlighting current consumer issues and making suggestions on how to close legislative gaps<sup>2</sup>.

TRANSPORT SERVICES: AIR TRAVEL

As the number of people travelling is increasing every year, air passenger rights have become one of the most important consumer rights sectors. As passengers tend to purchase their tickets either directly from the airline or from booking intermediaries, which often are licensed in another EU Member State, air transport was often the main reason to contact the ECC-Net when problems arose.

The total number of cases received related to air passenger rights over the network's 15-year existence is more than 210,000.

Out of a total number of cases received between 2005 and June 2020. Since the beginning of ECC-Net, among the strongest categories are: Transport, Recreation & Culture and Restaurants, Hotels & Timeshare.

<sup>2</sup> www.europe-consommateurs.eu

intermediaries

Other air-related queries (airport taxes, fees, card charges)

There is a need to ensure that passengers enjoy easier access to information about their rights when travelling by air. The area of air passenger rights encompasses a wide range of issues<sup>3</sup>:

---

Flight delays and cancellations

Claims for damages

Return and one-way flights

Denial of boarding

The Icelandic volcanic eruption of 2010 and the coronavirus pandemic 10 years later clearly showed the fragility of the air transport industry and how such events can affect everyone. It also highlighted the need for strong consumer protection in this areas as the legislation exists but enforcement is the weak link.

The ECCs proactively provide information on passenger rights, e.g. when airlines ground or cancel flights, airport personnel is on strike or travel agencies are in difficulty. They frequently operate stands at travel fairs and issue special reports to support consumers and inform policy makers.

Regulation 261/2004<sup>4</sup> protects air passengers flying from/to EU airports or with EU-licensed carriers. Clarity on consumer rights and enforcement mechanisms is paramount. The ECC-Net welcomed the European Commission's initiative to revise both Regulation 261 establishing common rules on compensation and assistance to passengers in the event of denied boarding, cancellations or long delays of flights, as well as Regulation (EC) 2027/97 on air carrier liability in the event of accidents.

The ECC-Net encourages policy makers to agree on a final version that balances the rights of passengers with the financial and technical difficulties encountered by air carriers.<sup>5</sup>

In order to achieve the best possible results for air travel consumer rights, there must be increased cooperation between consumers, airlines, national consumer protection authorities, ADR and National Enforcement Bodies (NEB). The ECC-Net continuously strives to encourage and enhance communication and cooperation with all stakeholders involved. Only a solid system based on mutual cooperation will guarantee strong air passenger rights and strengthen trust in EU legislation.

TRANSPORT SERVICES: CAR RENTAL

Car rental is another major source of complaints for the ECC-Net.

Since 2008, the network has frequently notified the European Commission and national enforcement authorities of unfair imbalances in the relationship between consumers and car rental companies.

Number of total cases handled between 2005 and the end of June 2020: 35,792.

It should be noted that the industry has improved in recent years, thanks to its active engagement with the European Commission, the ECC-Net and national enforcement authorities (CPC-Network), via the promotion of codes of conduct, alternative dispute resolution and other undertakings.<sup>6</sup>

However, based on ECC-Net's experience, the industry's shortcomings, especially when trading via third-party intermediaries, cause massive harm to consumers. Sector-specific legislation for car rental services would help clarify the obligations of service providers, including intermediaries, and strengthen consumer trust in the industry. Between 2018 and 2019 the total of car rental cases, both complaints and information requests, received by the ECC-Net doubled.

SHOPPING: E-COMMERCE AND MARKETPLACES

E-commerce is growing at a phenomenal rate globally. As markets evolve and online shopping increases, the global retail sector grows from strength to strength every year. According to a new eMarketer report, global online retail sales alone will rise to $4,058 trillion in 2020.

As cross-border online retail grows all the time, so must consumer confidence and cross-border shopping protection. Enforcing clear and strong consumer safeguards will benefit both traders and consumers and will result in increased European and international trade. Specifically, consumers must be provided with clear and reliable information about the businesses they engage and contract with, both on- and off-line. The proposed EU Digital Services Act will require online marketplaces to clearly inform consumers about the identity of the party with whom they are concluding a contract (if it is a professional trader or a private individual). The responsibilities of both trader and platform, as well as the contact details for complaints, should be made very clear, as online purchases now involve three parties: the consumer, the trader and the marketplace.

The ECC-Net has been involved in the stakeholder consultations of the European Parliament on the Digital Services Act Initiatives and expects to see a high-quality piece of legislation that offers complete and reliable protections for all European consumers. It is time to focus on ex ante regulatory instruments and on proactive and strong collaboration with enforcement authorities.

SHOPPING: COUNTERFEIT PRODUCTS FROM WITHIN AND OUTSIDE THE EU

A pan-European investigation found two-thirds (66%) of products – including carbon monoxide alarms, baby toys and travel adaptors – bought from third-party sellers on the most popular sites in the EU failed EU safety standards. BEUC (The European Consumer Organisation) and its consumer members tested 250 products across 18 categories during 2019 and 165 of them failed official safety tests. Many were deemed to constitute a safety risk for consumers as they contain harmful substances, have a sub-standard design or unclear information.

E-commerce comes with a higher risk for consumers to fall victim to online fraud. Deceptive practices have been developed to make the consumers think they bagged a bargain. These 'bargains' may in fact turn out to be illegal products, advertised in such a way that the buyer is unaware that the product falls foul of legislation on health, safety certification or intellectual property rights.

In 2017, the ECC-Net published a report on the impact of counterfeiting on online consumer rights in Europe, the risks of buying counterfeits on the Internet, and tips from the ECC-Net for consumers in Europe who want to avoid unpleasant surprises. Having traditionally targeted the luxury market, counterfeit products now extend to medicines, cosmetics, children's toys, shoes and automobile parts, all available for sale online. These online bargains seem incredibly attractive, but counterfeit products may pose health, safety and financial risks to consumers and expose them to various legal sanctions in all EU countries. ECC-Net's online shopping leaflet advises consumers on how to avoid buying fake products on the Internet.

ECC-Net receives complaints from consumers who, consciously or not, purchased counterfeit items every day. According to Europol statistics, counterfeit and pirated products account for approximately 5% of all imports into the EU.<sup>8</sup>

ABOUT US

Belgium, the small country at the heart of Europe, with three national languages, a large community of expatriates and 11,5 million consumers. Sharing a border with four other countries, all about a two-hour drive away.

The Belgians know what cross-border shopping is all about. We can see this in the increasing number of consumers we help, through our website, social media and direct legal advice. Being part of a strong ECC-Net we can inform and collaborate with various stakeholders and co-funders and reach many European consumers.

"In ECC Belgium we are juggling every day with 3 different languages, a diversity of team members, a lot of consumer questions and all this we do with great enthusiasm. The increasing amount of requests is our biggest challenge. What motivates us most is working within this fantastic network, alongside great colleagues and for the benefit of all consumers in Europe."

"Being the smallest country, ECC Malta has a very positive experience of this network. It is a clear example of a teamwork environment. Although we might have different cultural perspectives on consumer redress, which might sometimes create conflicts between centres, we always manage to achieve the network's goal: increasing the consumer confidence in the EU Single Market. ECC Malta is proud to be part of this great team!"

ABOUT US

The Dutch ECC has experienced significant growth in recent years. We look back on 15 years in which our visibility and brand awareness has increased tremendously and we established strong and effective relationships with stakeholders and the media.

Consumers find in us a reliable expert that can guide and assist them when they encounter a problem while shopping or travelling abroad. In this regard, the cooperation with the colleagues of the ECC-Net is indispensable. We could not have helped so many consumers without the partnership, know-how and motivation of this network.

ABOUT US

ECC Spain is a project co-funded by the European Union and the Spanish Ministry of Consumer Affairs. From its headquarters in Madrid, ECC Spain offers information, assistance and advice to national consumers who have experienced problems when buying from companies based in other country of the European Union (including United Kingdom during the transition period), as well as Iceland and Norway.

The objective is to help citizens understand their rights as consumers and to offer them all the benefits of belonging to the Single Market.

ABOUT US

We are part of an exciting network of 30 centres based all across the EU, plus Iceland and Norway. The 30 centres work together to provide advice to consumers all over Europe to empower them to enforce their consumer rights. We are not an enforcement body, so do not take action against companies, but our advice leads to a resolution in the majority of cases that we handle.

Our service is unique in that we advise only on cross-border consumer matters (where the company you have a complaint against is based in a different European country). And the best thing about our service is that it's free!

MAKING A DIFFERENCE

Being proactive

Future is never easy to predict. The coronavirus pandemic put us all to the test, not only as individual citizens and consumers but also as a Europe-wide operating network. It proved that fast communication, goal-oriented case handling and strong international cooperation are needed to react to rapidly changing and unpredictable situations.

The impact of COVID-19 on the Gross Domestic Product of some Member States has already been severe, some more so than others. Unstable supply markets, changing travelling habits and consumption patterns of European consumers and bankruptcies of companies are among the likely medium-term outcomes of the pandemic. We have also seen scams and misleading practices increase during the corona pandemic, taking advantage of the vulnerability of thousands of consumers. We remain ready for these challenges and to adjust our information, service and activities quickly and flexibly.<sup>9</sup>

The core activity of the network is case handling and consumer advice. But based on direct and personalised assistance to consumers, the ECC-Net has key information and can share experiences and knowledge with Alternative Dispute Resolution and/or enforcement bodies, as well as other stakeholders such as consumer organisations and trade associations, always in the collective interest of consumers and fair markets for honest traders.

The revised Consumer Protection Cooperation Regulation, applicable since January 2020, has given the European Consumer Centres the power to send external alerts to the enforcement authorities and the European Commission. This mechanism allows to quickly identify consumer threats and to tackle them. The ECC-Net is ready to use this possibility in the upcoming months and years for a better protection of European consumers.

<sup>9</sup> Coordinated actions National consumer authorities and the Commission work together within the framework of the Consumer Protection Cooperation network to protect the rights of EU consumers. https://ec.europa.eu/info/live-work-travel-eu/consumers/enforcement-consumer-protection/coordinated-actions\_en#covid-19

Being digital

The ECC-Net was faced with a significant increase in consumer contacts, while at the same time having to switch to remote work overnight due to national confinement measures. Quickly and without disruption to the service, the ECCs adopted the necessary technical measures to continue serving its consumers. Over the last few years, the European Commission and the ECC-Net have developed a robust data management and case-handling IT infrastructure. A reliable online case-handling system and information sharing platform allowed a successful service in exceptional times. Online meetings allowed us to keep in permanent contact throughout the 30 countries. Digitalisation of our services must now be expanded further. ECC-Net will strive to improve its technical environment and adopt modern online self-service tools for consumers.

More automation in case handling via, for example, intelligent complaint forms for consumers and AI-enhanced information provision are being looked at. The pandemic has also shown that now, more than ever, both consumers and other stakeholders need a one-stop-shop to get in touch with the ECC-Net as a whole. Therefore, the network is launching a website to facilitate outreach.

Digital technology advancements and smart contracting processes within the EU Single Market will allow us to focus on creating further digital solutions for our own case handling. Special attention will be given to online marketplaces and web stores, new digital selling methods, mediation services, digital content and products, and cooperation with third countries. The ECC-Net is always au fait with the latest developments. In this changing environment consumers must be given access to increased transparency (trader identity, information requirements, commercial communications and consumer profiling) and fair contractual conditions. Enforcement authorities must be equipped with the necessary tools and effective penalties to sanction abusive market players.

The Digital Services Act shall ensure a level-playing field for businesses so they can enjoy the potential of the Single Market and help them be more competitive and earn consumer trust. The ECC-Net will advise consumers on how to best interact with automated decision-making systems and other innovative digital services and applications. For example, it will advise on how to request checks and corrections of errors resulting from automated decisions or how to obtain redress for any damage related to the use of these automated systems.

The objective of the legislation is to preserve the principle of “what is illegal offline is also illegal online” and support the interplay between EU consumer protection legislation and data protection.

Being environmentally conscious

The pandemic encouraged many consumers to adopt more environmentally-aware behaviours: less flights and travel for some, buy more local products and support local traders for others. Staying at home also means less commute-related carbon emissions. At the same time, e-commerce has enjoyed dramatic increase.

In the coming years, the ECC-Net would like to encourage consumers, especially in cross-border contexts, to become more responsible and make informed choices with regard to their consumer behaviour. Sustainability should be an important factor to consumers' purchase decisions. However, there is also a risk of consumers receiving only partial or even deceptive information.

Therefore the ECC-Net will support the EU Commission and the flagship 'Green Deal' by proposing awareness-raising on "planned or premature obsolescence" and/or "greenwashing practices" disguising misleading environmental claims. As a follow-up of a previous joint project, the ECC-Net will inform consumers on legislation concerning spare parts and repairs, in line with the current efforts by the national and EU legislator towards a circular and sharing economy.

Sustainability is the overarching objective that guides our Network's operational processes and the nature of the advice we supply to EU consumers on more environmentally-friendly consumption. We do this by raising awareness on durable, less polluting products that have a longer lifespan and higher repair potential.

The ECC-Net looks forward to engaging further with stakeholders regarding potential substantive rights and responsibilities emerging in this sector.

Being a service-oriented Network

The ECC-Net has proven its strength over the last years and the recent Corona crisis highlighted its added value and operational effectiveness. Today we are united in the face of continuous challenges and ever-increasing demand for our services.

We recognise the challenges ahead, such as our own limited resources, changing consumer behaviour and technological developments. With the support and input of the European Commission, we will continue to invest in further employee engagement and targeted training that will enable us to optimise our individual centres' services and allow us to sync and strengthen our operations across the Network.

The ECC-Net aims to provide the highest quality of service through expertly trained staff operating in close and productive collaboration across all our member offices in the field of cross-border consumer rights.

Our pan-European case handling knowledge base and standardised processes and procedures are examples on how we managed to professionalise and streamline our information provision and consumer assistance prerogatives.

As the crisis has shown, a high level of preparedness when it comes to reviewing and implementing frequent to daily legislative updates in national and European law has served our offices and the work of the entire network well. We will continue to further improve and modernise our resources and processes in order to respond to high and changing consumer needs and to collaborate successfully with our partners and stakeholders, both national and European.

Being an active and reliable partner

Our unique continent-wide perspective on cross-border consumer rights and issues, the ECC-Net is a valuable partner to all key stakeholders and collaborators both at EU and national level.

We will be active in supporting the EU Commission's priorities such as sustainability and the digital transition, and will be ready to help shape consumer policy by providing first-hand information about the experiences of European consumers.

The media is an essential partner in helping to reach larger audiences and raise awareness on cross-border issues. One of our proudest moments in 2020 was a social media video campaign in conjunction with our partners in the European Commission on raising visibility of our Network's services and the importance of consumer rights in an unpredictable world.

A decorative graphic in the top left corner featuring a large green gear with several five-pointed stars of varying sizes scattered around it. The stars are also green, and the overall theme is European Union symbolism.

Being there for European consumers

We will keep their interests in mind, when answering based on our experience on the ground to public consultations and by cooperating with stakeholders, in order to strengthen existing policies and advocating for new pro-consumer EU legislation.

The Network has contributed greatly in the European Commission's Consumer Agenda consultations. ECC-Net is regarded by our European partners as pivotal in the implementation of the upcoming consumer rights and will continue to receive European co-funding for this purpose from the upcoming Multiannual Financial Framework 2021-2027.

We are honoured to help contribute to enhancing consumer law protections for each and all EU citizens.

We remain committed to consumer rights advancement and promotion in our day-to-day work as well as conveying the real needs consumers at the level of policy making, implementation and enforcement.

ECC-Net has offered advice and support to more than 1 million European consumers since 2005. What we do is more important than ever and we look forward to serving consumers over the next 15 years and beyond.
